Sir at the conclusion motivated the students and participants to give their best as they have received the best of the facilities with the changing times.

Session 1

Theme I – Global Pandemic a boon for Environment & Planet Myth or Reality

Panel of Judges –

1. Dr. O. P. Joshi, Environmentalist
2. Lt. Col. (Retd.) Anurag Shukla, Ex – Army Personnel and Environmentalist
3. Ms. Juhi Bansal, Project Associate TERI.

The threats discussed were related to the days post pandemic which will see the huge deployment of labor force to make up for the time lost. The High rate of production activities, carbon emission and generation of medical waste were the major threats perceived by the presenters

The biggest opportunities were found in the medical/pharmaceutical, healthcare and wellness industries. The researchers were of the opinion that the industries have done remarkably well during these days and will also do well in days to come. Research for a vaccine was also regarded as an opportunity by most of the researchers

Theme II – Sustainability and Growth of the Global Economy Post Covid-19: An Opportunity Threat Analysis.

Panel of Judges –

1. Dr. Ganesh Kawadia, Former – Dean, School of Economics.
2. Dr. C. K. Goyal, Professor and Head of Department, IBMR, IPS Academy.
3. Dr. Yashpal Netragaonkar, Associate Professor, MIT World Peace University, Faculty of Education, Kothrud, Pune.

Post lockdown the problems that the industries would face were related to that of labor force. The lack of labor force, reduced rate of production, imbalance in demand and supply etc. were the major threats mentioned by the researchers.

Researchers also came up with opportunities arising out of the pandemic which will pave way for further growth and help in reviving the economy. It discussed the various opportunities in the sectors like healthcare, pharmaceutical, agriculture, e-commerce etc. where a tremendous potential is waiting to get explored.

Session 3

Theme III – Concussion of Covid – 19 on Aviation, Tourism and Hospitality Industry – Positive and Negative Contemplation.

Panel of Judges –

1. Aryama Sanyal, Airport Director, Indore.
2. Capt. Shekhar Gupta, CEO, Aircrews Aviation Pvt. Limited.
3. Saloni Tyagi, COM and Legal Manager, IIAHM, Bhopal.

The session showcased the threats imposed by pandemic on Aviation, Tourism and Hospitality industry. The major threat faced by the industries combined was that of absence of non availability of tourists which will give rise to many problems in all the industries associated with it. Costs will mount owing to loss of revenue and high maintenance costs in all the mentioned industries.

In the post pandemic era the non availability of workers can be overcome by the local habitat to an extent. The opportunities in food sector are tremendous and the prompt home delivery service will also help in enhancing the business.

Session 4

Theme IV - Impact of Covid -19 on Legal Fraternity and Dispute Resolution Challenges & Opportunities.

Panel of Judges –

1. Mr. Ajar Rab, Founder, Rab and Rab Associates.
2. Ms. Akshata Namjoshi, Lead, Fintech, Block Chain and Emerging Tech at Karm Legal Consultants, UAE.
3. Dr. Nuzhat Parveen Khan, Former Dean, Faculty of Law, Jamia Milia Islamia.

Since the lockdown the hearing of cases has stopped and it has resulted not only in delivrance of justice but has also made the process a more tedious. The threats arising due to the violation of the principle “Justice Delayed is Justice Denied” was a major concern. The other threats discussed once the lockdown eases were be the resumption of proceedings with pending matters along with the cases registered in the last three months.

The time lost during the last three months has presented an opportunity to redesign and remould the entire judicial system. It prominently emphasized on the need of using technology in making the judicial process a bit faster and speedy. Use of information technology in Forensic evidence can enhance the working and bring about faster results. The idea of ODR (online Dispute Resolution) was another opportunity discussed broadly.

Session 5

Theme V – Threats and Prospective Impact of Covid – 19 on Healthcare Industry- Challenges Ahead.

Panel of Judges –

1. Mrs. Chitra Khirwadkar, Director, Administration, Index Group of Institutions, Indore.
2. Mr. Azaj Ahmed, Post Doctoral Researcher, China Medical University.

The biggest threat arises when unlock begins and people are free to roam around. This will be the time when the spread of infection may suddenly see a sharp rise and it can adversely impact the already worn down workers from this industry.

The days ahead provide opportunities for higher level of research and development in this field as there is a need to find a cure which may help the mankind in fighting against such pandemic in future too if the need arises. Forewarned is Forearmed hence research in identifying such more viruses and developing a cure is also an opportunity on the cards.

Session 6

Theme VI –

International affairs, relations, law making and public policy.

Panel of Judges –

1. Dr. Howard Williamson, Professor, University of South Wales, England.

2. Dr. William Nunes, Associate Professor, Gujarat National Law University.

The most eminent threat will arise from the sector of trade and industry where there will be a surge to get back to normal and start exerting its dominance over other players. The balance of trade and balance of payment too will be adversely affected and will result in conflicts between the nations..

The researcher also found various opportunities. The days ahead present themselves with opportunities in the field of mutual benefits like healthcare, research and development etc. where countries could help each other. Similarly trade balances for some countries changed which helped them with their economy.
